

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

During the relative displacement between a warping stand with a warping drum and a beaming stand with a warp beam for rewinding a thread group, mutual support takes place at a supporting bearing. In this way, very high warp tensions can be adopted, without the risk that the warping stand will tilt and without the latter having to be loaded with additional weights.